Headline:
Early cloud and mist clearing. Sunny spells following.

Today:
Early cloud or mist patches soon clearing. A dry, bright and occasionally breezy day follows, with good spells of sunshine. Temperatures will be near normal for mid-November. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Tonight:
Clear skies and light winds for most, and feeling rather cold in the far southeast, perhaps a touch of frost. Cloud thickening from the northwest during the early hours. Minimum temperature 2 deg C (36 deg F).

Thursday:
Cloudy and breezy with most places dry. Chance of a few brighter spells, most likely along the south and east coasts. Rather mild. Maximum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Rather cloudy, and mild Friday and Saturday, but mostly dry with just the odd spot of drizzle. Likely turning colder through Sunday, with sunny spells, showers and brisk winds.
